

Class 11 Main Lesson: Parzival – Day 2 - Tuesday

Welcome, sweet innocent fools!

Today, another journey begins.

Please note: I have also uploaded a 'Characters' sheet to help you along as you listen; and a "Fonts" page – this is to make your writing/headings/presentation of your bookwork look cool as. Not obligatory, but can be fun!

1. Please say the special verse.
2. Please email me jkirov@lyss.vic.edu.au with your chosen:
 - Sacrifice;
 - Virtue.

(I will keep your virtue to myself. If you would like me to keep your sacrifice to myself also, please let me know).

3. Personal Reflections (in the back of your book, dated) – remember to elaborate where possible.

DISCLAIMER: Anything you write in your reflections will be kept PRIVATE.

HOWEVER: by law, if I feel that you are in danger in any way, then I am obligated to share any relevant information with the relevant people/parties.

- I. What am I grateful for?
 - II. Who inspires me? Why?
 - III. What gives my life meaning? *Can you elaborate on how?
 - IV. I am going to sacrifice:
 - V. The virtue that I am going to embody for the rest of the ML is:
4. The 'back-story' of Gahmuret and Herzeloyde – Parzival's parents in brief dot-points, either in an exercise book, typing, or remembering:

what information can you recall about:

> Gahmuret: Parzival's Dad

> Herzeloyde: Parzival's mother

Ask yourself: what qualities might the child of this union produce? What gifts and challenges might their child be bequeathed?

...

5. LISTEN: Please listen to me read part one of 'The Fool':

6. Personal Reflection Tasks for Tomorrow (think about them tonight, ask your parents tonight, and then tomorrow you write about it)
- I. What qualities/characteristics do you recognise as having inherited from your parents (or grandparents)?
 - II. Your name: (its qualities; what it means to you; etymology (research the etymology/history of your name)
Ask your parents how they came to name you _____; do you have any other names/nicknames? How do you feel about your name/s?
